

Figure 6. Elementary school teachers' views on whether the time students spend taking mandated tests is appropriate

Figure reads: An estimated 84% of public elementary school teachers whose students take district- and/or state-mandated assessments said that too much time is spent taking these tests.